

INDICE

Acknowledgements	vii
Acronyms and abbreviations	ix
1 Introduction
Facing the poverty challenge	1
The scope of the present report	3
Summary findings from the 10 country case studies	4
2 Albania
Growth depends on private sector development	9
The PRS process better development planning	11
World bank support emphasizing country ownership	13
Bank-fund collaboration Conclusion building credibility. Coordinating aid	15
3 Cambodia
A long road from conflict to growth	17
The PRS process awkward timing, incomplete ownership	18
World bank support a need for effective local support and for better alignment with the PRSP	21
Conclusion learning from experience	22
4 Ethiopia
Addressing economic fragility	25
The PRS process good for government-donor relations	27
World bank support more decision making in the field	30
IMF support constructive engagement	31
Conclusion a revived partnership	32
5 Guinea
Good potential to benefit from the PRS approach, but weak institutional capacity	33
The PRS experience a good document, but inadequate process and limited implementation	34
IMF support a challenging policy environment	38
Bank-fund collaboration Conclusion form over substance	40
6 Mauritania	43
Abundant resources, unmet needs
The PRS process a centralized effort that may undermine implementation	44
World bank support overall alignment with the PRS	47
Conclusion a process in danger of reversal	48
7 Mozambique
Poverty reduction as a peace dividend	51
The PRS process a common point of reference with strong government ownership	53
World bank support an effective local presence	56
IMF support too low a profile with civil society Conclusion toward general budget support	58
8 Nicaragua
Poverty reduction in polarized country	61
The PRS process too little focus on growth	63

World bank support discussing options for growth	66
Bank-fund collaboration
Conclusion modest results under difficult initial conditions	68
9 Tajikistan
Surmounting regional strife to reduce poverty	71
The PRS process better governance for a better business climate	73
World bank support a challenging shift to community-driven development	76
IMF support challenges of shifting to a new way of doing business while continuing to foster fiscal discipline	77
Bank-fund collaboration	78
Conclusion implementation requires clear priorities, greater coordination	79
10 Tanzania
A new resolve to fight pervasive poverty	81
The PRS process a shaper focus, better data, and wider participation	83
World bank support too intrusive or not intrusive enough?	86
IMF support gradual alignment with the PRSP and opening up of the debate on program design	88
Conclusion a healthy process that has become embedded in domestic institutions overcomes defects in the original document	89
11 Vietnam
Successful poverty reduction	91
The PRS process concurrent strategies	94
Bank-fund collaboration
Conclusion merging parallel policy processes	95
Annex: guidelines for the country case studies	97
Endnotes	101