

INDICE

Foreword	xi
Acknowledgments	xv
Abbreviations and glossary	xvii
Overview	1
Nature and evolution of migration, 1990-2006	3
Migrant remittances	6
Determinants of migration	8
Labor migration	13
Methodology	19
The report in perspective
1. Overview of migration trends in Europe and Central Asia, 1990-2004	23
Problems with measuring migration in ECA	26
Migration and population change	30
Major migration flows in the ECA regions	32
Refugees and internally displaced persons	37
Transit and undocumented migration in the ECA region	41
Major migration partners of the ECA countries	46
Future migration trends in the region	50
2. Migrants remittances	57
Data	58
Impact of remittances on development	60
Economic impact of remittances	63
3. Determinants of migration	75
Incentives for migration: a theoretical perspective	77
Incentives for migration: empirical evidence from eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union	79
Incentives for migration: lessons from southern European countries and Ireland	86
Simulating the determinants of migration	92
4. International regulatory framework	97
Current regime	98
A proposal for an alternative framework	107
Appendixes
1.1 Survey methodology	113
1.2 Migration Statistics	115
2.1 Remittance data	125
2.2 Estimations of the impact of international remittances on macroeconomic growth	127
3.1 Estimating the determinants of migration in ECA	139
3.2 Computable general equilibrium model of migration	147
4.1 The impact of migrants and the receiving society: integration policies	157
4.2 Transitional arrangement for the free movement of workers from the new member states	163
4.3 Undocumented immigration and vulnerabilities	167
4.4 Incentives for criminality in migration	173
4.5 Migrants, their families, and communities "Left Behind"	177

4.6 Brain Drain in the ECA Region	181
Bibliography	191
Index	207
Boxes
1 Possible costs and externalities of illegal immigration	16
2 Methodology	20
2.1 Estimating the impact of remittances on macroeconomic growth	68
3.1 Estimating the determinants of migration in ECA	83
3.2 Irish migration dynamics	89
3.3 Portuguese migration dynamics	90
4.1 Possible costs and externalities of illegal immigration	106
4.2 Social externalities generated by migration	108
Figures
1 Remittances as a portion of GDP in Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union, 2004	6
2 Percent distribution of remittances and population by location in 2002	9
3 Disparities in GDP per Capita in the CEE-CIS states, 1990-2002	10
4 Postwar emigration from Southern Europe, 1960-88	12
5 Migrants preferences for short versus long-term migration	18
1.1 Transition of the migration system in the Europe and Central Asia region	24
1.2 Migration in top 10 sending and receiving countries and by region, 2003	25
1.3 Natural increase (decrease) and net migration in the ECA region, 2000,03	31
1.4 Net migration in western ECA and the CIS	33
1.5 Largest migration flows involving a CIS Country, 2000, 03	36
1.6 Largest migration flows involving a western ECA country, 2000,03	37
1.7 Main displaced populations from the former Yugoslavia, December 1995	38
1.8 Main displaced populations from the former Soviet Union, Mid-1990s	39
1.9 Refugees and Internally displaced persons in the ECA region, 1989-2003	39
1.10 Largest numbers of refugees, IDPS, and others of concern in the ECA region 2004	40
1.11 Russia, net migration by country, 1989,2003	47
1.12 Major Migration Partners of the CIS Countries	48
1.13 Poland: Net Migration by Country, 1992-2003	50
1.14 Major Migration Partners of Selected Western ECA Countries	51
1.15 Population Size of Western Europe, Western ECA, and Turkey, 1950 to 2050	52
1.16 Population Size of the Northern and Southern FSU States, 1950 to 2050	54
1.17 Russia: Net Migration and Natural Increase, 1980-2015	55
2.1 Leading 20 Remittance-Receiving Countries in the World	58
2.3 Growth rate of remittance in ECA: 1995-98 2001-04	60
2.4 Remittances as a Share of exports in 2003	63
2.5 Expenditure Patterns from Remittances in six ECA countries	64
2.6 Remittances as share of total household expenditure	65

2.7 Distribution of remittances by location in 2002	70
2.8 Distribution of population by location in 2002	71
3.1 Nationality Composition of Migration to Russia, 1989 to 2003	80
3.2 Disparities in GDP per Capita in the CEE-CIS States, 1990-2002	81
3.3 Net migration in selected Immigration countries in ECA, 1989-2003	85
3.4 Net migration in selected emigration countries in ECA
3.5 Postwar emigration in southern Europe, 1960-88	87
3.6 Percentage decrease in total migration flows into the EU owing to improvements in quality of life	93
3.7 Percentage increase in migration outflows from EU-15 to ECA countries owing to improvement in quality of life in ECA	94
4.1 Migrants preferences for short-versus long-term migration	110
4.2 Percentage decrease in illegal migration into the EUY owing to increase in penalty for hiring illegally	111
Tables
1.1 Population by place of birth in the USSR, 1989	29
1.2 Migration flows involving ECA countries 2000-03	35
1.2a Total migration flows involving ECA countries and major partners, 2000-03
1.2b Percent of total emigration
1.2c Percent of total immigration
1.3 Estimated irregular migrants	45
2.1 Remittance flows by subregion, 2003	61
2.2 Annual consumption and remittances per Capita by quintile	72
3.1 Motivations for migration	78
4.1 Regional composition of bilateral agreements	100
4.2 Geographical distribution of bilateral migration agreements between CEEC and EU-15	101
4.3 Bilateral migration agreements between the EU and CEECs by country and type	103
4.4 Number of registered foreigners and estimated number of aliens living irregularly in some CIS countries, 2000	104