

INDICE

Foreword	vii
Abstract	viii
Acknowledgments	ix
Executive summary	1
Chapter I. Poverty Base don work by Kihhon Lee, Pia Peeters, Corine Siaens, and Quentin Wodon	15
Income poverty remains high a Latin American and the Caribbean and despite some progress in the 1990s
Latin American and the Caribbean's performance in non-monetary indicators of well-beings is better	32
Chapter II. Inequality Based on work by Matias Baresntein, Corinne Siaens, and Quantin Wodon	37
Latin America and Caribbean countries have high levels of income inequality
Sources of income and consumption contribute to inequality in different ways	42
The impact of education on income inequality may not be as large as believed	48
Another drive of inequality in Latina America and the Caribbean is the extent of self-employment	49
Another reason for high inequality in Latin America and the Caribbean has to do with income mobility	51
Chapter III. Opportunity (I)-broad-based growth Based on work by Robert Ayres, William Maloney, and Quentin Wodon	55
Growth improves both monetary and non-monetary indicators of well-being
In urban areas, informal employment has been rising	59
In rural areas, the poor lack access to land, credit, and another assets	64
Chapter IV. Opportunity (II)-investments in human capital Based on work by Corinne Siaens and Quentin Wodon	69
Education helps in emerging from poverty
The costs of child labor in terms of forgone future life-time earnings is high	78
Chapter V. Security Based on work by Norman Hicks and Quentin Wodon	89
The poor tend to be hurt during economic crises by cuts in targeted spending
Safety nets help to protect the poor from economic shocks	92
A first group of safety net programs provide temporary public employment	94
A second group of safety net programs are food-based	98
Other types of programs can benefit the poor during a crisis	102
Tools are available for assessing the targeting performance of programs	104

Chapter VI. Empowerment Based on work by Robert Ayres and Quentin Wodon This report has a Central Focus, with corresponding limits	109
Poverty assessments highlight the need to make institutions pro-poor	113
Some social funds have managed to be responsive to the needs of the poor	118
Issues related to empowerment also include social capital and exclusion	122
References	123